New Shell Appointments Announced

Appointments of personnel to head the recently acquired synthetic rubber plants in the Torrance area were announced Friday by R. C. McCurdy, president of the Shell Chemical Corp.

The three plants were recently purchased from the government by the Shell firm for $30,000,000, and will revert to private ownership about April 25.

The present manager of the butadiene plant, Martin Voogd, will head the combined butadiene-styrene-copolymer units. Superintendent under Voogd will be G. S. Williamson, who is now superintendent at the butadiene plant.

Heading a new marketing division to handle synthetic rubber sales will be J. P. Cunningham, now manager of the company's product development department in New York. J. E. Toews, currently district chemical sales manager in Los Angeles, will be sales manager.

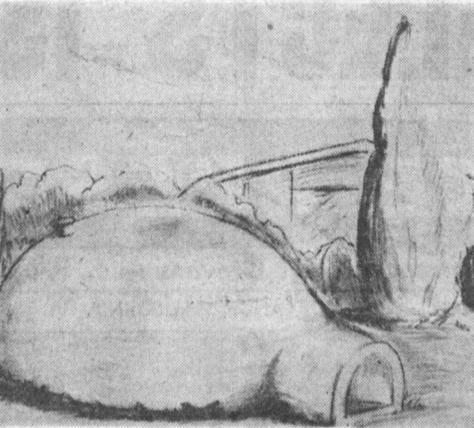

Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Flanagan of 1810 W. 245th St., Lomita, announce the birth of a daughter, Sharon Marie, weighing 8 pounds and 1 ounce.

LOCAL MAN DESIGNS IGLOO BOMB SHELTER

IT'S AN IGLOO ALL RIGHT... The latest word in bomb shelters is this concrete igloo designed by Capt. Douglas J. Horlander, commander of the Torrance unit of the National Guard. Capt. Horlander has submitted the idea to the Civil Defense department for approval.

If a local man's plans for a bomb shelter is approved by the Civil Defense department we might all be living in igloos in the event of enemy air raids.

The idea for a concrete igloo shelter was developed about two years ago but only recently released by Civil Defense for approval by Capt. Douglas J. Horlander, Corps of Engineers, California National Guard.

Captain Horlander is the commander of Torrance's National Guard unit.

Economical

The igloo shelter may be the answer to a cheap shelter that can be produced in large quantities quickly, yet afford the average family the most protection available at this time on a large scale basis, Capt. Horlander stated.

The igloo shelter uses the bladder-principle of construction. An inflated bladder is covered with six inches of concrete. A few days later the bladder is deflated and removed, leaving the concrete igloo to be used as a bomb shelter.

Size

The shelter will be about four feet high overall, eight feet wide, and twelve feet long. Gunite cement is used with waterproof cement added to give waterproofing qualities to the shelter.

The igloo shelter can be built on a production basis for less than $600 and takes only four job-hours to construct, Capt. Horlander stated. Lead shielding may be applied over the

ANTHONY'S ADVENTURES

My daddy says Torrance is the nicest town to be in business in that he knows of. He says that everyone has been so nice and courteous and honest that it's hard to believe. And I think so too.

I especially like Amelia, the lady who runs the cleaning shop right next door, and Joyce at the Sport Shop and her little girl Debbie, and Handy Andy at the barber shop—alho I am a little worried by that buzzer thing Andy clips my hair with. After all, I've only got two ears.

The customers are all real nice to me, and I like people in big bunches 'cause then I can show them all the things I can do. Maybe that's why Ralph Gompertz at the Press calls me a "little ham."

We've got some new long black Toscano cigars in the store. If you save the labels from five packages and mail them in with 25 cents you get a cigar lighter. Daddy smoked one the other day and said that instead of sending a cigar lighter they should send a new pair of lungs.

If you make your own spaghetti dinners, Mommy says why not give her meat balls and spaghetti sauce a try. It takes the work out of cooking a big dinner. And makes the pleasure in eating it even better than usual 'cause you're not all tired out. See you again next week right here in front of the Pizzeria.
